All In Order

Christoffer Ellegaard

Mister All-In-Order loves nothing more than order. His house is impeccably clean and his garden is flawless... What more could he possibly tidy up and clean?

A superb graphic work on gouache in vivid colors, which blends perfectly with the architectural and sleek lines of the beginning, and the lush and abundant forest at the end. Christoffer Ellegaard shows off a funny and intelligent picture book, to express the importance that a little mess and fantasy can have in a well-ordered life. It questions the link between Man and Nature, and makes the case that in striving too hard to control, direct and bend Nature, we end up destroying it. An ecological tale that encourages us to welcome a little mess in our life.

It's In The Detail

Élisabeth Géhin

An elongated picture book which zooms in on the world, allowing tiny tots to explore their surroundings in detail.

This is an ultra-modern book, picking up on one of Élisabeth Géhin's favourite themes: classification. It features lists galore, in an unusual order. Things are classified, but differently in each chapter. Children learn to name the things around them while discovering the world from many points of view. Without the readers even noticing, this book helps them develop an artistic outlook on the world.

16 x 27 cm - Hardcover - 128 pages

On The Whole

Élisabeth Géhin

In this beautiful book, Élisabeth Géhin invites small children to see the world as a succession of places formed by collections of people, things, animals, plants or even aliens!

17,5 x 21 cm - Hardcover - 78 pages

Rights sold: English (North America), German, Italian, Simplified & Complex Chinese, Swedish

My Little Paradise

Lili Scratchy

A fresh and bubbly picture book to remember that our own paradise is never far away!

What could be worse than parents always watching you, a cat vomiting into your slippers, or having the same friends since kindergarten? To escape all of this, our character starts imagining her own paradise: alone on an island in the middle of nothing, true happiness. Still, she would need her favorite sneakers, the pizza guy, shelves for the books, and her parents for the goodnight hugs...

In a wacky and offbeat style, Lili Scratchy offers us a determined and endearing little girl in which all kids can see themselves. A funny and cheeky way for the reader to reconsider their not-so-depressing everyday life.

17,4 x 24 cm - Hardcover - 32 pages

Coco's Team

Mimi Bossy / Whiny Whiner

Christophe Nicolas & Anouk Ricard

Creatures that are stubborn but also tenderhearted and terribly endearing, in a word: kids! The characters of Coco's gang come to life with Anouk Ricard's quirky and humorous drawing.

After Coco Bagarre and Princesse Caca learn about two new delicious characters: Mimi Commande (Mimi Bossy) and Quin-Quin (Whiny Whiner). You get the picture. It's forbidden to laugh with Mimi unless she says so. And with Whiny, be careful, you will need to pack loads of tissues, because he can find sadness anywhere...

17 x 19 cm - Hardcover - 32 pages

An Awesome Cow-Boy Story

Delphine Perret

Delphine Perret is in charge of a schizophrenic little book mocking the politically correct and playing with story-telling. It is absolutely irresistible and hilarious.

"It's the story of a cow-boy. I replaced him with a monkey because I was told that cowboys are too scary." This is how this awesome cowboy story begins...

On the left page: large text telling stories of an unwieldy cowboy that eats baby rabbits, swears and robs banks. So, how can one illustrate such unbridled violence? Delphine Perret rewrites the story on the right page, giving life to a monkey that brushes his teeth while enjoying aerobics. This creates an absolutely hilarious text-image relationship for this explosive book, which mocks political correctness.

15 x 21 cm - Hardcover - 32 pages

Olive & Léandre

Alex Cousseau & Janik Coat

A bear and an octopus are looking for each other in the ocean's vastness. Everything opposes them, and though...

Léandre is a bear living far up North. Olive is an octopus that lives all the way down South... Perhaps between the North and the South, somewhere in the middle, they can find space together.

This is a very classic love story (with love letters, and everything opposing the lovers, etc.) but with fantasy added in. And yes, a bear and an octopus can live together, whatever ethologists or oceanologists may say. Janik Coat takes us from the depths to the surface of the colorful ocean and its engaging characters. This incredibly heart-warming picture book tells of the importance of perseverance in the pursuit of love.

24,8 x 34,8 cm - Hardcover - 32 pages

The Stinky Tribe

Élise Gravel & Magali Le Huche

If you thought that dirty children were stupid, you're in for a surprise! Especially if your name is Yvonne Carré.

Have you heard of the stinky tribe? They're a little gang of dirty children who live with their animal friends in huts made of sticks. Fanette Ducoup, the tiny leader, saved the tribe from Yvonne Carré's clutches. If there's one person who loathes the forest children, it's Yvonne Carré, the head of the orphanage! She's determined to clean up those cheeky monkeys and has tried everything to lure them into her washing machine....

Nonstop fun, ecology and freedom.

Thanks, Élise and Magali!

24 x 32 cm - Hardcover - 32 pages

The Truth About Other Planet's Residents

Julien Baer & Magali Le Huche

A funny and gentle journey of discovery to meet the inhabitants of other planets...

In this wacky, fake documentary, the author shows different types of inhabitants that he met, describing them skillfully with few well-chosen words. We learn that the Martian is a hand, that the Mercurian is often cold and wears a scarf at all times, the inhabitants of Orion are very, very flat and that the Nekkarian looks Asian but actually, isn't.

With a sparing use of words and lines, this gallery of character stands on a thin line between tenderness and crazy humor. A precious little two-color picture book with a linen cover to laugh, give and let you dream.

15 x 15 cm - Hardcover - 72 pages
