NATURE CRIB SHEETS

50 crib sheets for clueless parents.

By François Lasserre, Candice Hayat, David Melbeck, Jampur Fraize

Why haven't birds got teeth? Do animals have bogeys too? Why is snow white? Does the female praying mantis really eat the male? Why are leaves green?

Children ask so many questions! Answering them can be a challenge for parents, grandparents, teachers and those working with little ones. The "Nature crib sheets" provide replies and stimulate children's interest in the natural world.

Each volume contains around 50 failsafe answers on a nature topic close to home. These crib sheets answer those tricky questions and offer a wealth of quirky facts, incredible detail and even some unexpected asides for adult readers.

6 titles available: Animal world records, Animals going out at night, Creepy crawlies you find in the house... and in the bedroom, Forest plants you can and can't eat, Creatures that fly with or without wings, Little creatures that are only a teeny bit scary.

By David Melbeck and Aurélien Cantou

If one is asking about ponds or the waterholes, you'll be thinking about a still stretch of water, rather calm and boring. BUT, in fact, incredible things are happening here. Should you be a fan of science-fiction, detective stories, drama, or show-biz, glitters and red carpets... discover the fabulous powers and the vital destinies of bugs and plants in our water surfaces.

You are invited to the largest scenes of wild life: love, crimes, exploits, metamorphosis.

- 15 questions: you are invited to attend 15 presentations that will reveal incredible stuff.
- 15 actions: become the incredible actor of the life and environment close to your home!

3 titles available: Bugs and plants in the pond, Visitors and habitants of the trees & In the garden. And to come: Under the rain.

The whole editorial project is composed of a book and a poster (open 84 x 56 cm, folded 21 x 28 cm). The book can be published on its own or with the poster.
